Forgotten Books, United States, 2015. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 229 x 152 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from George Washington as Man of Letters George Washington had an extraordinary respect for higher education, and was always inclined to overestimate what he considered his own deficiencies in this regard; but, though he never went to college, Washington s education was so comprehensive that Patrick Henry said of the First Continental Congress, If you speak of solid information and sound judgment, Colonel Washington is unquestionably the greatest man on the floor. The delegates who attended this Congress were the ablest body of men who up to that time had met in America; among them were John and Samuel Adams, Roger Sherman, John Jay, Richard Henry Lee and Patrick Henry. It was of this Congress that Chatham said in his speech in the House of Lords, January 20, 1775, For myself, I must declare and avow that in all my reading and observation - and history has been my favorite study - I have read Thucydides, and have studied and admired the master States of the world - that for solidity of reasoning, force of sagacity, and wisdom of conclusion, under such a complication of difficult circumstances, no nation or body of men can stand in preference to the general Congress at Philadelphia. Dr. S. Weir Mitchell, who speaks with authority about Washington, says of all the fiction and of all the calumnies about this man, the most singularly without foundation is the belief early held by many that he was uneducated.
